PROGRAM — 11

```
/***************************************************************/
/* Name of the Program : login                                  / / Aim                 : take login as a command-line argument and / /                       display a message when a person logs in   / / Author              : Phebe John                             */
/* Date Written        : 01.02.2018                             */
/***************************************************************/

/***************************************************************/
/* PROGRAM:                                                     */

echo input user name is : $1
tuser=`who | tr -s " " | head -1 | cut -d " " -f1`
if [ "$tuser" = "$1" ]
then
echo "Your user name is: $USER";
echo "Logged on date is: $(date)";
echo "You logged in successfully";
else
echo "Incorrect user name";
fi
/***************************************************************/

/***************************************************************/
/* RESULT :                                                     */
/*                                                              */
/* The script is executed and the output is verified           */
/*                                                              */
/***************************************************************/
```

```
/*************************************************************/
```
OUTPUT:

```
$ ./pgm11.sh mca1640
input user name is : mca1640
Your user name is: mca1640
Logged on date is: Tue Jan 30 10:15:34 IST 2018
You logged in successfully
/*************************************************************/
```